Botswana Red Cross Society (January 2023 - September 2022)

- Member of Legae Academy's Advocates for Red Cross committee which has done numerous charitable activities such as:
 - painting the Tlamelong Rehabilitation Centre for disabled people in tlokweng
 - hosting a school FIFA tournament whereby each person was charged P30 to participate. We made posters all over the school, advertising the event during assembly and even asking other students to make announcements in their respective classes leading to over 60 Legae students registering for the tournament. P1700 was raised and given to the Cheshire foundation. The winner of the tournament also received a P250 cash prize.
 - school bake sale held during valentines day. As a member of the ARC club we came up with the idea of asking fellow students to write a letter to their valentine, which included a box of chocolates for only P35. We also sold roses at P10 each and made a school bake sale using the total money raised to buy equipment used for painting and also buying food for the disabled people at the Tlamelong rehabilitation centre.
 - We also collected donations in monetary form worth P2400.65 and clothing from Legae Academy students and donated it to the Botswana Red Cross Society. The money was obtained through fundraising activities like Civvies, and asking students for donations every morning in their respective classrooms.

- We solved many different niche mathematical problems that significantly improved my critical thinking abilities.

Moalosi Simmental & Dorpers (2021 -2023)

During school holidays, I gained valuable hands-on experience working at my uncle's feedlot, where I actively participated in various tasks. My responsibilities included constructing feeding troughs using cement and concrete blocks, feeding the cattle a diet consisting of hay, silage, and molasses, applying pesticides, and attending auctions in South Africa to purchase cows.

The primary function of the feedlot was to prepare cattle for the market, focusing on efficient growth and achieving uniform slaughter weights. I learned how to optimise cattle growth by providing a nutritionally balanced and energy-dense diet, promoting rapid weight gain to expedite reaching market weight. The controlled environment of the feedlot allowed for meticulous monitoring of factors like diet, health, and living conditions, contributing to efficient and predictable production processes.

In addition to my hands-on work with the cattle, my uncle provided me with a comprehensive education in business management. He taught me accounting, profit analysis, and various technical aspects related to both cattle and business operations. My role extended to managing the feedlot's finances and understanding the intricacies of running a successful enterprise.

One of my key responsibilities was to mix the feed for different types of cattle, ensuring that each category, including calves, lactating cattle, bulls, and growing cattle, received the appropriate food ratios. The feedlot's largest customer was the Botswana Meat Commission, and some of the cattle from the feedlot were utilised to produce canned beef.
